Stephen Allen's Pocket Piece.

Many years ago, the fine steamer Henry Clay, which ran between New York and Albany, when on her down trip and just opposite the beautiful Village of Yonkers, was found to be on fire. The steamer was immediately headed for the shore, but notwithstanding its nearness to the land, and the heroic efforts made to rescue the passengers, many lives were lost. Among the victims was Stephen Allen, Esq., an aged man of the purest character, formerly Mayor of New York, beloved and esteemed by all who knew him. In his pocket-book was found a printed slip, which the following is a copy. If our young men, and old ones too, would practice these precepts, the virtue, patriotism and prosperity of the Nation would be vastly improved.

FOR THE

Keep good company or none. Never be idle.
Live up to your engagements.
If your hands cannot be usefully employed,
cultivate your mind.
Always speak the truth. Make few promises.
Keep your own secrets, if you have any.

HARTFORD

When you speak to a person, look him in the face.
Good Company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.
Good character is above all things else.
Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

HERALD

If one speaks evil of you, live so that none will believe him.
Drink no kind of intoxicating drinks.
Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.

YOUR OWN

Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper.
Never play at any game of chance.
Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.

COUNTY

Earn money before you spend it.
Never run in debt unless you see a way to get out again.
Never borrow, if you can avoid it.
Do not marry until you can support a wife.
Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy.

PAPER.

Never speak evil of any one.
Save when you are young to spend when you are old.
Be just before you are generous.
Read over the above maxims at least once a week.

The Intemperate Orator.

BY R. CAMPBELL.

No store of wisdom, wit or sense,
A truth most melancholy;
Offers an absolute defense,
To save mankind from folly.

For men with talents half divine,
The wisest maxims utter.
Then fall beneath the touch of wine
And wallow in the gutter.

The drinking orator behold,
With voice and gesture charming,
And eye of light and mouth of gold,
His audience swaying, warming.

He bounds along from height to height
With heat celestial glowing,
While tears of sorrow or delight
Down many a cheek are flowing.

The Judge is by his magic gained,
Though stern and calm and stony;
And justice by his sorcery chained
Forget the testimony given.

When war is in the land and fear,
His country's banner rearing
He speaks, and cowards volunteer
Inspired with martial daring.

But hear him for the right contend
In councils of the nation,
Then heads of Roman model bend
In act of adoration.

Witness his wondrous memory
For history and quotation,
His wisdom and philosophy,
His power of illustration.

Then see him turn without delay
To haunts of sin and folly,
And throw himself and fame away
In vice most unholly.

He leads a checkered mournful life,
Reforming still and falling,
But quits at length the unequal strife
And dies in woes appalling.

O thou to whom as truly great
And grand a genius lent is,
Take heed, nor seek the fame and fate
Of Marshall or of Prentiss.

Livermore Sleepings.
Editor Herald:
Messrs. Henry Morton and Enos
Gordon are building themselves houses
in which to live and die.

Main street is now lighted up by large street lamps, giving a very city-like appearance to the town.

Another tipping saloon has come into existence since my last.

Weir & Moorman's factory is banging away, with a fair prospect of banging all winter.

R. E. Hackett & Co.'s saw, grist and planing mill gets very little work.

N. H. Ford's machinery is not idle.
Business is booming.

Mud-holes in the streets have dried up, otherwise they are the same as of old.

Winter is coming and the people are filling their coal and wood houses, etc.
It is not known whether the tobacco buyers will handle the weed the coming season or not.

The Union Sabbath-school is flourishing.

The Rt. Rev. R. D. Bennett, assisted by Revs. Crow, of Owensboro, and Barnes, of No Creek, are holding a protracted meeting here, but so far have accomplished nothing.

The City Hall and lock-up have sunk into obscurity again.

The O. & N. R. R. has quit selling round-trip tickets to all stations except Owensboro. The road and not the people will feel the effects of the change.

When the news of the Ohio election reached here George Priest yelled himself hoarse, and several men got drunk
in honor of the occasion.

The office of Town Marshal is apparently vacant.

The Board of Trustees meet no
more.

Ball-playing is the favorite sport with the school-boys. They play all day Sundays.

Before I close, let me say a few words about farms and farming. The tobacco is all safely housed; a better crop corn was never seen, the ears are large and full, and thick as hops. An average acreage of wheat has been sown, rather late, however, on account of dry weather; sweet potatoes are plentiful and large, and altogether we have been blessed with a rich harvest.

Truth is mighty, and will prevail.
Many have winced before its terrible power. Those who consider themselves secure behind the barriers of deceit will come out when the awfully grand crushing force of truth is hurled against them. Thousands have felt its power, and not unfrequently has the one whose lips uttered the truth suffered in consequence. The writer will, in the future as in the past, be a strong adherent of truth, and will never be shamed groveling in the filth of deceit in order to curry favor with any—serving all alike.

Woodward Valley News.

Editor Herald:

Dr. James P. Cox was buried at Mt.
Olivet church, last Saturday. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J.
S. Coleman. Although he did not live among us, his works were so completely with us that he seemed one of ourselves. Never was a man more mis-
ed. He was our doctor, and the people of the Valley will be lost without him.
I cannot pen words sufficient for his praise, and I leave the subject with the firm hope that a more gifted pen will contribute to his memory.

Farmers are busy sowing wheat since the rains.

Sorghum making is the order of the day.

R. E. Williams and J. I. Ashby did a big job floating logs in Barnett's creek yesterday.

Mrs. Sallie E. Ashby and Effie Kat-on and your scribe have returned after a fortnight visit in and near Boonville, Ind., which is the place to see large wheat fields and Irish potato patches. The day of our departure broke dreary and gloomy, and by the time we reached Owensboro, we had made up our minds to a lonely trip up the Ohio river. But in this we were disappointed, for on board the Henry Logan were several other passengers, consisting of three ladies and ever so many gentlemen. They were from Sacramento, and were going to Rockport,

where one couple expected to be married. They were a joyful crowd, and,
notwithstanding the inclement outside,
we had plenty of sunshine in the little cabin. I hardly knew which to admire most, the calm, statuesque beauty of the bride, I have forgotten her name, or the friendly, outspoken bridesmaid, Miss Lucy Clark, if I mistake not, the groom was a Mr. John Sparks,
He seemed to be a man one could trust.

While we were in Boonville the quiet of the town was disturbed by a horrible accident. It happened in this wise:
The County Clerk, Moore, and several others were in the gun-shop preparing to go hunting. Moore was about half drunk and was fooling with a gun,
when it accidentally went off shooting his brother-in-law's foot so that it had to be amputated immediately. So much for King Alcohol. I am not a woman's rights advocate, but I would to God that every woman in these United States were allowed to lift up her voice against this great evil.

Nancy Jane Jones, I have been waiting a month for you to get over your sore and get your fingers ungloved so you could write again, but you have exhausted the last spark of patience I have left, and now I ask you to please write again.

Long may the HERALD wave o'er
the land of the brave be the wish of GRAZIA.

Death of F. Buell Bennett.
CERIALVO, Oct. 25, 1883.

Editor Herald:
With sadness we record this week the death of our esteemed friend F. Buell Bennett. He died of typhoid fever last Friday morning, after an illness of about five weeks, and I was buried in the Providence graveyard near his home.

During his long and painful illness he was never heard to murmur or complain, but seemed perfectly resigned to the will of his Master. His last words were
"I am going home to live with Jesus."

In his death his parents have lost a kind and affectionate son, and the community a faithful friend.

Farewell, Buell, we will meet you
When the storms of life are o'er,
In the bright, celestial mansion,
On the other happy shore.

An Undoubted Blessing.
About thirty years ago, a prominent physician by the name of Dr. Wm.
Hall, discovered, or produced, after long experimental research, a remedy for diseases of the throat, chest and lungs, which was of such wonderful efficacy that it soon gained a wide reputation in this country. The name of the medicine is Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam
For The Lungs, and may be safely relied on as a speedy and positive cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, &c. Sold by all druggists.

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The President has issued the following
thanksgiving proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America—A proclamation: In furtherance of the custom of the people at the closing of each year to engage, up-a day set apart for that purpose, in a special festival of praise to the Giver of all good, I, Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States, do hereby designate Thursday, the 29th day of November next, as a day of National thanksgiving.

The year which is drawing to an end
has been replete with evidences of divine goodness. The prevalence of health, fullness of the harvests, the stability of peace and order, the growth of fraternal feeling, the spread of intelligence and learning, the continued enjoyment of civil and religious liberty
all these, and countless other blessings, are cause for reverent rejoicing.

I do, therefore, recommend that on the day above appointed, the people rest from their accustomed labors, and meeting in their places of worship, express their devout gratitude to God that He hath dealt so bountifully with this Nation, and pray that His grace and favor abide with it forevermore.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington, the 26th of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and eighth.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.
By the President:
FREDERICK T. FRELINGHUYSEN,
Secretary of State.

A Dangerous Animal.
Not many months ago, I was in the cars—our "Panhandle" cars, which at once suggest comfort to the traveler—
and was interesting myself in observing my fellow-travelers. It is an old habit of mine to seek entertainment of such as may be so fortunate or unfortunate as to travel with me. I was wondering who this is and that is, and what they are here for.

Sometimes the answers inferred are not very pleasant. For instance, on that very road I saw a woman and four children. They were very still, and I wondered what was the matter. At a little station they left the car, and there stood a little group of people to meet them. In an instant all were weeping.
I wondered why. Our cars moved on,
and I saw a man and a woman and a box that had just been lifted from the baggage car containing some one's coffin.
I said to myself: "No doubt it contains the mortal remains of the husband and the father."

But it was not of them or of him
they were mourning I meant to write.
There is a class of men who ride on every train at the West, of their own sort, enterprising, jolly, and free in speech and manner. Among them are some of the smartest fellows, and for their predict fortune. They encounter peculiar dangers from their roving kind of life, and not the smallest of these is from tipping. It is very easy to imagine that the water is bad, or to feel dazed, or exposed to some disease,
or that one is tired, and that a little whisky will be good. I notice also that many young men make a mock of my fears. They are as merry as crickets as they tell their daring exploits. Many of them carry a well-filled flask. And thus they get very familiar with that which has destroyed multitudes.

Two of these men met in our car.
They were merry, and last they went back to the water-tank to get water to mix with something else which they drank. And when they returned to their seat, they were very pale, and for their sort—as I trust I do not—or because they noticed my interest in their movements, one of them asked me if "I would not take a little? It is real good!"

I thanked the young man for his offer, although my sense of duty struggled with my politeness, and I felt that I ought rather to say, "Get thee behind me Satan!" But still I thanked him, added, "Let me pay you by telling you
a story."

Now a story in a tedious ride on a railroad, even if it be in one of the elegant Panhandle's, is always welcome,
and so they all listened as I began.

"The fact is, gentlemen," I said,
"Whilst thankful for your offer, I am afraid to accept it."

"Well, I'm not afraid," said the young man, as if a little hurt.

"I was not speaking of you, but of myself," I replied. "The fact is, I am afraid. But I was to tell you a story, not an original one, but one in which that wonderful man, Father Hunt, the Temperance lecturer, was an actor."

You may not know that on that subject it was not always wise for an opponent to attack him. He was sure to be a little singed in the conflict.

One day Mr

Your Duty.

In the last issue of our paper, we undertook to define and out line our duty as journalists, and, at the same time having had in view the community interests, as well as that of our own, in editing and publishing a local newspaper, devoted to the maintenance of law, order, good morals and democratic principles.

Now, the query is and arises with us, to consider and weigh, and ask you, the people of this county, what is your duty, as well as interest, in the premises both present and future, in regard to this matter of the maintenance and giving material aid and succor to your county paper?

This question is put by us to the great mass of the people of this county without regard to classification.

Is it not a fact, incontrovertible, that the publication and general dissemination of a good local newspaper in your midst, is essential and necessary to the cultivation and promotion of your county interests at home and abroad, in matters pertaining to your good morals, religion, education, commerce, militia, manufacturing, agriculture, mechanics and professions?

And further, would it or not, greatly contribute, if well conducted and edited, commensurate to the demands of the times and interests of the county, to the general building up and sustaining every interest of this people, thereby super-inducing and causing the dormant energies of the people to be aroused to greater vigilance and exertion, thus stimulating them to throw off the drowsy lethargy that has hung over very many of our county people since the war; and thus too, putting in motion and development, every industry and resource that we have.

A local paper well conducted and edited giving the local and general news of the week, is the mouth-piece and spokesman of the people of the county—reflecting their views, and publishing their interests, defending the right and opposing the wrong, on all suitable occasions, regardless of the consequences.

We have largely over an average county, in point of intelligence, wealth and productions of the soil; and in area scarcely equaled and susceptible of the highest state of cultivation, rich in yielding productions of all kinds common to our State, provided the proper amount of effort and energy is brought to bear in that direction. Then, we say, where can you find such a fulcrum and lever, that would raise her still higher, to the scale of greatness and in the galaxy of counties, as that of a genuine and upright newspaper, that would be fearless in its advocacy and promulgation of just and correct principles and the inherent rights of the people.

Permitting any further expression of our views in regard to this matter at this time, we close this article with the hope that you, one and all, may upon due reflection and consideration of the suggestions herein made, do what you conceive to be your duty as we shall try to do ours, and then in the language of the adopted motto of our country, we will say, Fiat Justitia.

DR. JOSEPH B. COTTELL, a distinguished minister of the M. E. Church South, and well-known in this region of the world, has temporarily retired from the ministry, and will soon start on a lecturing tour through the South. We hope he will favor our people with a lecture. He is an able, eloquent and original speaker, and never fails to instruct and entertain.

P. B. S. PINCHBACK, the colored politician of Louisiana, has views upon the civil rights decision. He talks with much more sense regarding his race than do some of the men who are putting themselves forward as colored champions. He says: "I have never sought recognition in public conventions, hotels or places of public amusement because of the passage of this act. I have relied upon my deportment and ability to pay for what I desired, and I am pleased to say that I have rarely been refused. I believe the solution of this question is a matter of time, and will depend very largely upon the conduct of the colored people themselves."

ON the first instant General Phil Sheridan assumed the duties as General of the Army. General Sherman is retired on a salary of $17,500 a year.

THE Bowling Green Watchman, edited and published by a colored man, is for John M. Harlan and Fred Douglass for the Republican Presidential ticket in 1884.

THE Farmers Home Journal informs its readers that several wives in Owensboro have Triplets for husbands. They are virtuous wives, and of course would not have Triplets for other men.

WHAT per cent. has the Government lost in reducing the rate of postage from three to two cents, and what is the per cent. of gain to the people, is a question handled by Judge O'Flaherty, and will appear next week.

THE Republican majority in Iowa over all is 5,000 in round numbers, and the Democrats have forty-eight members out of 100 in the lower branch of the Legislature. The Republicans are certainly losing their grip.

It was a singular coincidence and rather phenomenal that two of our greatest and most distinguished divines of the South, to wit: Rev. Drs. Hiram A. Hunter and J. B. McFerrin, should have died Sunday, the 4th inst. Sic transit gloria mundi.

OUR President, Chester A. Arthur, has designated and set apart Thursday, the 29th of November next, as a day of National Thanksgiving, Gentlemen, will you take? Yes. We will take very little sugar and water in our'n.

THE Hopkinsville South Kentuckian, heretofore one of the best weeklies published in Western Kentucky, will hereafter be published semi-weekly. Charley Meacham knows how to edit and publish a good paper, and does it. We wish him the success in his new venture that his energy and talent so richly merit.

THE Hopkinsville New Era has reduced the price of its subscription from $2.00 to $1.50 a year, strictly in advance. The New Era is an excellent weekly, and cheap at the price, and yet they will realize more at $1.50 cash in advance than they have heretofore at $2.00 on a credit, and if they adhere to the rule "cash in advance" they will succeed.

THE New York Court of Appeals, in a decision just handed down, affirms the decision of the general and special terms of the Kings County Supreme Court refusing a mandamus asked for by the father of a colored child against the principal of a public school in Brooklyn. The ground for the mandamus was that the child was refused permission to attend a school for white children. The Court of Appeals declares that as the Brooklyn board of Education maintains schools for colored children, the father must send his child to one of them.

THE Bowling Green Democrat thinks it is now probable that Major Crumbaugh will not be appointed Secretary of the Navy. Why not? Mr. Hayes and Secretary Sherman had Chester A. Arthur removed from the collectorship of the port of New York that the affairs of his office might be honestly conducted, and now Mr. Arthur is President of the United States. —Yeoman.

The little spurt made against Major Crumbaugh for violation of the postal laws will assist his promotion if the Republican party stands up to its record, and we may have Grant and Crumbaugh as the Republican presidential ticket next year.

FROM interviews with the Governors of the Southern States, namely, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia, the New Orleans Times-Democrat makes a table of assessments, showing that since 1879 there has been an aggregate increase in wealth of $640,707,000; that $300,000,000 had been invested in railroads in these States; and that the railroad mileage has been increased from 17,200 to 26,049. Cotton manufacturing in Alabama, Georgia and North and South Carolina, has increased from 128 to 150 mills.

In 1879 the taxable property of Kentucky was $318,037,875, now it is $371,554,979—a gain of $53,517,104.

Among the reforms which the coming Democratic House of Representatives should strive to inaugurate, is the payment of fixed salaries instead of fees, to the United States district attorneys, marshals and deputy marshals, etc. Evidence is not wanting to prove that many of the violations of the law in the several districts were nothing but crimes perpetrated by greedy officials to increase their fees. General Rum, ex-Commissioner of Internal Revenue, admits as much, and no doubt the half has not been told. Reform is necessary. —American Register.

This is the nail squarely upon the head and drives it home. A large number of the cases brought before the Federal courts are mere persecutions, gotten up to secure fees for the officers. The most trivial errors are magnified into grave offenses, and parties entirely innocent of any purpose to violate the laws of the country are put to great trouble and expense to answer before the courts. Of course there are some exceptionally good officers who do nothing of this kind, but the gates being open, a good many unscrupulous fellows take advantage of the opportunity. If salaries were paid instead of fees, there would be an abatement of such persecutions. —Yeoman.

Dr. J. B. McFerrin Dead.

We learn from the public press that Rev. Dr. J. B. McFerrin died in the city of Nashville on the 4th inst., of aggravated malarial fever.

Dr. McFerrin was one among the ablest and most celebrated Methodist divines in all the South, and was at the time of his death, at the head and front of the great Methodist Publishing House in Nashville.

He was a man of great learning and ability, and had a very large and varied experience in worldly matters, and served with distinction as one of the leading clergymen in the Confederate army and was always found in the thickest of the fight. His loss will be deeply regretted.

LATER.—The Dr. is still alive, but in a precarious condition.

Acquitted.

The grand face of a trial, which has to some extent become characteristic of Kentucky, came off in the United States Court at Louisville last week, in which one, Maj. S. R. Crumbaugh, the present Revenue Collector of the 2d District of this State, was tried and acquitted.

The facts in the case are about as follows: This would be a fair and personally distinguished gentleman, after having been appointed to and snugly ensconced in the very fat office of Collector aforesaid, at a salary of $4,500 per annum, or $12.50 per day, including Sundays, with a retinue of clerks to assist and do his bidding, with all the adjunctive appurtenances and perquisites that are incident to a complete office furnished at Government expense; but still, with all this completeness and these essentials necessary to make one easy, independent and happy, however, this gentleman seems to be the most unhappy of men, and causes another great family, who are feeling around for the Government seat, to be unhappy.

Philosophically speaking, the bump of self-esteem and love of approbation, particularly since he came into office, has continued to grow and enlarge until they have superinduced, from cause to effect, the culminating idea that he was born to greatness and was cut out for a statesman; therefore he sets about, calling on his Happy-go-lucky and other friends and employees, through the medium of such elegant and lovely letters, which were of such nice diction and punctilio in style, that would have made old man Chesterfield, if alive, ashamed of himself, these letters too, he it known, were sent out under cover of unstamped Government envelopes, urging and requesting those favored friends in the most familiar manner to urge and promote his Crumbaugh's recommendation to the Republican Convention for the place of Secretary of the Navy. Finally the Happy family, for causes moving them, became and were, a very un-Happy family, which eventuated in a criminal information to the Federal Court wherein our distinguished and elegant friend was arraigned and tried; among other counts, the one for using Government envelopes for his private correspondence, which count in said information was not only clearly proven, but admitted to be a fact by the defendant; but with this evidence and these facts staring them in the face, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Thus it shows to the reflecting masses that position, money and influential friends kick the beam when justice is being weighed and dealt out, and the query comes in, what would have been the result had a poor man been arraigned on similar charges? We are of the opinion that the resulting consequences of this trial will be that our stiff, straight-backed friend will be retired to the more congenial and better suited to his genius, private life, and his name and fame in this connection, esto perpetua, as a warning to his successors.

Death of Rev. Dr. Hiram A. Hunter. We learn from last Monday's Courier-Journal, that the Rev. Hiram Hunter, D. D., died at his residence in the city of Louisville, on Sunday, the 4th inst., at about 3 o'clock, in his eighty-fourth year. He had been in feeble health for many years, and his last serious illness, which resulted in his death, dated from about the 1st of September—over two months ago—and during that time he required the constant care of his family and friends, who ministered to his every want.

He was born August 13th, 1800, and only three weeks before he was taken ill, he celebrated his eighty-third birthday in company with the members of his family and a few chosen friends—on which occasion he showed unusual vigor of body and cheerfulness of spirit—enjoying the society of his friends and taking a willing part in their entertainment.

Dr. Hunter was a most remarkable man in his day and many of the older citizens of this town and county, and particularly those who were once members of his church, will remember him as a man of marked characteristics and strong convictions—possessing great natural, as well as acquired ability as a pulpit orator and public declaimer of the great truths of the Bible. Many of his old friends and members of his church in this county, will recall to mind his splendid abilities, his earnest manner, his style of oratory and his very peculiar manner of calling the attention of his hearers to his discourses when he concluded they were not giving him their attention. Dr. Hunter was a great and good man, and those who knew him best, loved and admired him most. He was a man among men, a Christian gentleman and scholar, and devoted sixty years of his life to serving his Lord and Master.

But he has taken his departure from among us, and has gone the way of all the earth. Peace be to his ashes and may the memorabilia of his greatness and virtues be treasured up and handed down to those candidates, who are to succeed him, in obtaining those Christian virtues and graces which he so eminently possessed and with which he was adorned. So mote it be.

The Major Must Go.

Secretary Folger has not yet fully determined what will be his course regarding the Crumbaugh case, but it is probable nothing will be done at present. He is all along shown a disposition to allow the result of the trial of the case to determine what his course shall be. It is probable, however, that the developments of the trial, including the foolish personal ambitions of Crumbaugh, will result in the appointment of somebody else to succeed him at the end of his term, and perhaps sooner.

LOCAL OPINION.

"It seems to be the general impression," said a Republican to a Post reporter this morning, "that Maj. Crumbaugh is going to lose his official head as Collector of the Owensboro district."

"But he was acquitted yesterday."

"Oh, yes, he was acquitted. But what does that amount to? The trial had in itself very little significance. The Major admitted himself on the stand that he had sent private letters in free envelopes, but how was the Government going to prove that he did this to defraud Uncle Sam? Nobody cared to get him fined. But I tell you Major Crumbaugh won't be Collector much longer. Commissioner Evans will settle his case directly. The trial has proven one thing, that Crumbaugh is too indiscreet, to say the least, to hold his office. The testimony of his own letters shows him up in a most ridiculous light."

Now that the trial is ended, Commissioner Evans has given to the press his report on the Crumbaugh case. The report doesn't throw much light on the matter for, after that was brought out in the trial. The charges against Crumbaugh are four: First, appointing a Democrat to a subordinate position; second, giving as sureties upon his official bond persons engaged in distilling; third, making assignments of his subordinate on promise that the latter support his aspirations for the Secretaryship of the Navy; and fourth, using official envelopes for private mail. Col. Evans says none of these charges amount to anything, save the last, and about it he says nothing additional to what has been printed much more fully here during the trial. He expresses no opinion on the evidence, but merely submits it to the Secretary of the Navy. —Louisville Post.

Jefferson Principles of Administration.

Jefferson in his inaugural address of March 4, 1801, formulated the essential principles which should govern and shape the administration of our Government, in the following language, to wit:

"Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none; the support of the State governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies; the preservation of the General Government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad; a jealous care of the rights of election by the people—a mild and safe corrective of abuses which are lapped by the sword of revolution where peaceable remedies are unprovided; absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority—the vital principle of republics from which there is no appeal; to force, the vital principle of immediate parent of despotism; a well-disciplined militia—our best reliance in peace and for the first moments of war till regulars may relieve them; the supremacy of the civil over the military authority; economy in the public expense; that labor may be lightly burdened; the honest payment of our debts and sacred preservation of public faith; encouragement of agriculture, and of commerce as its handmaid; the diffusion of information and the arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason; freedom of religion; freedom of the press; freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus; and trial by jury impartially selected—these principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and the blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith—the text of our instruction—the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which leads alone to peace, liberty, and safety."

Who is to Blame?

Well, Professor, how is my boy getting along in school now? asked a patron of a well known school, not long since.

Professor. To be candid, I must say that your boy is not doing as well as I think he ought to.

Rector. Indeed! I am surprised. I always thought that Willie was a smart boy and consequently expected him to learn rapidly. How is it that he gets along so better?

Prof. That question is easily answered. Your son does not attend school regularly.

But, yes, he has been absent a little it is true, but not enough to make much difference.

Prof. There is where you mistake. Every hour lost is lost never to be recalled. If your son comes to school one day and stays at home two, you can not expect him to have a very clear idea of any subject he may study. I find upon referring to my record book, that at your child has been absent from recitation four days during the last two weeks. Now, if you will be good enough to give me a reason for his absence, we may find a cause for his slow progress.

Rector. Well, let me see. The first day you speak of, his mother wanted him to go with her on a nutting expedition. The next time he went out in the country to visit his uncle. The next time I don't remember exactly, but I believe he was a little complaining, and the last time, he went out in the woods after wild grapes.

Prof. If you were to neglect your business as much as you allow your son to neglect his duties in the school, you would soon have no business to attend to, yet you are even now ready to blame the teacher for the very thing that you are responsible for. It is your duty to see that your child comes to school promptly and loses no time unless positively compelled to do so, then you will see a decided change for the better in the rest of your son's work in school.

The patron saw the truthfulness of the Professor's remarks and left him after resolving to allow no such frivolous excuses as he had given to prevent his boy from being always present at recitations.

How many such parents as this one do we find. There is nothing more annoying to a teacher than to have pupils come to school in this irregular way. It is impossible for a boy or girl to derive the advantage from a course of study that may be secured unless the subject is studied in a close, connected and an analytic way. To do this, close application and promptness in attendance, are necessary. Some parents do not seem to recognize this important fact, but regard a child as a kind of automaton, and the school room as only a place where he can go to be set going, then he is ready to frolic around until he is in a measure run down, when he returns for a renewal of the same operation. Such a view is decidedly erroneous, and if parents desire to have their children benefited by going to school, they must see that the absent marks on the teacher's roll book be very few—otherwise, the efforts of any teacher, no matter how efficient he may be, will be fruitless.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering friends. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. College Notes.

"Oh, my! that Greek verb," was what a youth was heard to say.

The essays of the rhetoric class was especially interesting last Friday.

Mr. George A. Weller is the last matriculate in school.

The Claytonians have changed their time of meeting to Friday night, we presume in order to have more time to prepare their speeches. The boys think they have the brain (?) in their society, but we girls will show them "by and bye."

The Professors say we may have a reunion soon. We want our friends to come as we will endeavor to make the evening pleasant for them.

John J. McHenry, is at McHenry, this week. The girls of the geology class miss him.

Prof. W. B. Hayward, our efficient instructor in "Theory and Practice in Teaching," lectured to the school last Thursday, on the subject, Self-esteem. The lecture was replete, chaste and refined, and highly appreciated by all who heard it.

The quarterly reports are due at the end of this week. Some of us await them with "fear and trembling."

A Perfect Combination with Two National Advantages—Why It Concerns You.

"There is no mistake about it," remarked Dr. F. F. Fowler, of Buffalo, N.Y., "BENSON'S CAPSULE PLASTER is the best of the newest combinations ever introduced. It has two kinds of advantages over all others, which we may call the minor and the major. First, they are clean and pleasant to use, never soiling the hands nor the linen of the wearer. Second, they act quickly and powerfully. I have tried the Capsule Plaster on myself for pneumonia, and on my patients for various diseases such as Neuralgia, Muscular Rheumatism, Lumbago, Kidney trouble, and in all cases relief has followed in from three to forty-eight hours."

Dr. Flower merely voices the written or oral opinion of thousands in his profession. Benson's Capsule Plaster is the most perfect external application. The genuine value of the world's best CAPSULE PLASTER is $1.00 per box. Sent by mail, enclosing 25 cents. W. H. H. & Co., New York City.

Still Another.

We have heretofore had two plates for the issuance of counterfeit money left in this office found at the old Wheeler place in this county. Monday Mr. Dan T. Wilson brought us a $50 plate found on the same premises last week. Wheeler had an old horse mill that seemed to be headquarters, and about this old mill have all these plates been found. On Monday of last week the wind blew down the sheet of the old mill and a little girl, daughter of Wood Pearce, found this first plate while playing around there on Tuesday. This a plate of the Bank of the State of Georgia, Savannah. Wheeler was suspected of belonging to a band of horse thieves, counterfeiters, etc. Several of his gang were arrested, convicted and sent to the penitentiary, and it got so hot for Wheeler that he left here in 1880. He went out west somewhere. He was a fine talker, a large face-looking man, and very shrewd, and no doubt a slick scoundrel. His name while here was Charles Wheeler, whether that was his light name or not we do not know. Come in and see the plate.

Mr. Thos. F. Anderson, 22 Market street, Louisville, Ky., says: I used Brown's Iron Bitters for nervousness and general debility with good results.

To Our Subscribers.

A few weeks ago we announced our inability to run a paper on the credit system, which means, we cannot run a paper without money. We also announced that we would notify those subscribers who were in arrears through the mails. We have been sending out notices during the past week, and will continue to do so until all who are in arrears are notified, and a prompt response and remittance of the amounts due will enable us to meet our obligations and to give you a better paper in the future. The amounts are generally small, and the parties owing may think it a matter of trifling importance, and delay remitting, but they should remember that several hundred of these small amounts aggregate thousands due us, which we have earned and which is due us, and the payment of which would place us in a good financial position and without which we cannot continue in business, and these small amounts can in most instances be easily raised by the parties owing.
Please pay us so that we can pay what we owe and purchase such material as we need for the continuance of the publication of the paper.
Help us, and help us now.

Alexander H. Stevens.

We have just received at this office a beautiful little volume which ought to find its way into every Southern home. It is an excellent sketch of the Life of Alexander H. Stephens, written by Frank H. Norton, author of the Life of Winfield S. Hancock, and other works. It contains an excellent portrait and a fine view of Mr. Stephens' late residence. A remarkable feature of the work is its wonderfully low price. Though a volume of nearly 100 pages, large, handsome, leather bound, beautifully printed on good paper, it costs only 10 cents in paper, or 25 cents in a very tasty cloth-bound volume; and even at this rate large discounts are allowed to agents and clubs. It is published by John B. Alden, 18 Vesey St., New York.

Parody.

The boy stood on the burning deck,
And cast his weeping eyes around,
And vowed he would not leave the wreck
Survive, or perish, swim or drown,
And lighted by the lurid flame,
He plunged the waves and swam ashore,
Though sad and wet he straightway came
To Gilstrap's great Emporium Store.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Wm. Davidson, an aged widow and mother of Messrs. Sam and Ed Davidson and Mrs. Henry Dean, died at the residence of the latter, in Breckenridge county, on Sunday, Oct. 22d. She was an exemplary and model woman; a kind and affectionate wife and mother; and died as she had lived, in the full possession of all the christian virtues, including faith, hope and charity.

Hon. E. D. Walker.

It was our good fortune to be present at the Union Sabbath-school last Sabbath. At the close of the interesting exercises the Superintendent called on Mr. Walker for a few remarks, and he very gracefully responded.

He is one of the most fluent, forcible and pleasant speakers we ever listened to, and is an earnest and impressive reasoner, and we would advise all to hear him to know his worth. His language is as pleasant as the soft cadence of some flowing stream through fairy-land. No one has thought that are purer, grander and more ennobling than he; and is ever ready to give words of encouragement and point out the many seductions and gilded paths that allure the young from the straight and narrow path that leads to that City to which we are all enigmatically pointed that "House Beautiful" on our mind with immortal fragrance and freshness, and spoke so beautifully of the realm of the redeemed and blest that every bright and happy upturned face present seemed to express a delicious, tender yearning for the time when all their troubles of the earth would be over that they might speed on wings ethereal to join the loved ones.

Is there any higher standard by which to judge a man than the side of Christianity? We are proud that we have such an able advocate in our midst, are proud that we had the pleasure of the purifying thoughts, in fact, we are proud of our citizen, Hon. E. D. Walker.

An Awful Responsibility.

Everybody has something to say about consumption. We all deplore its terrible ravages, but only a few of us seem to have enough common sense to take the proper means of preventing it. It is as simple as "two and two are four," that Hales Honey of Horehound and Tar, taken as a remedy for coughs, colds, difficult breathing, hoarseness, or any of the symptoms which pave the way for that terrible destroyer, will effect a radical and rapid cure of the ailment, and avert all danger. Whoever, under these circumstances, neglects to resort to the true specific, assumes a fearful responsibility. Of druggists.
